NONVERBAL COMMUNICATION THROUGH CLOTHING IN CONTEMPORARY LEGAL CULTURE

Comunicarea nonverbală prin vestimentație în cultura juridică contemporană

Human language is an extremely complex form of communication, consisting of countless growing languages and dialects. The way how the human body either emphasizes or contradicts spoken words is as important as the words we use. There are times when actions, clothing or colors speak louder than words – a fact that has a considerable impact in contemporary legal culture.

The scientific research that we develop through this scientific article is dedicated to the analysis of the development of non-verbal communication through colors and clothing styles and its impact on contemporary legal culture. The purpose of the scientific approach is to study nonverbal communication and highlight the aspect related to colors and how they influence emotional sphere, self-knowledge through clothing styles, as well as the development of nonverbal communication capabilities in the legal sphere.

The research revolves around the following topics: the systematization of existing information in specialized literature regarding the meaning of the concept of nonverbal communication; the particularization of the concept of non-verbal communication through the prism of approaching the meaning of colors and the way of influencing the emotional sphere in legal education; presenting clothing styles and identifying the social role of clothing versus the academic role; highlighting concepts regarding self-knowledge through clothing; identifying the methodological recommendations regarding the improvement of non-verbal communication capacity through clothing in the legal culture of the 21st century.

In a practical way, through this research we tried to offer interested people a detailed analysis of non-verbal communication through colors and clothing styles in contemporary legal education and legal culture. We have tried to highlight the most important aspects in the field of clothing color matching, by analyzing clothing styles and in a way that everyone can understand. Also, the study contains recommendations for improving the development of non-verbal communication skills on the dimension of acquiring and practicing a contemporary legal culture.
